

2022/2023 – ELEVATED LEARNING

Global Study Program

YiFei Li, Renmin University, China

“The program has significantly enhanced my personal growth, giving me a sense of confidence. The supportive environment at UC Davis allowed me to push beyond my comfort zone and discover my true capabilities. The resources, mentorship and opportunities allowed me to engage in activities that aligned with my interests and aspirations.”

Ryunosuke Akima, Chuo University, Japan

“The Global Study Program has definitely broadened my horizons—testing my capabilities and competency, making lifelong friends and witnessing different lifestyles. I also enjoyed the environment of the Davis community, which is perfect for studying.”

Bimo Rizki Abdusshamad, Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia

“Living the Californian way of life has been truly enjoyable, because it challenged and improved me to be healthier both mentally and physically. The campus is very peaceful, the buildings are beautiful and the campus feels truly alive.”

Taichi Kitagawa, Meiji University, Japan

“One of my most memorable experiences was being a member of Bakuatsu Taiko Dan. Through the club activity, I made so many friends, did many performances and had many cultural exchanges. Members of this club treated me as if I were a regular student. I am so grateful to have spent such a meaningful time with them.”

Global Study Program Students Use Drama to Build Communication Skills and Confidence

Strong communication and presentation skills are valuable in any setting. But for GSP students at UC Davis, learning to communicate effectively in English is not only essential for academic success, it is also empowering. In addition to helping students both inside and outside the classroom, being a confident speaker helps them develop important soft skills for success in a variety of professional environments. The course Presentation, Communication and Collaboration Skills, offered in conjunction with the UC Davis Department of Theater and Dance, is highly regarded by students as an opportunity to experience something unique that may not be available at their home universities.

The goal of the course is to help students develop clear oral and physical communication and collaboration skills that build confidence, presentational style and clarity while using the English language. They also build essential soft skills that employers value, such as teamwork, interpersonal communication, creative problem solving, empathy, adaptability, critical thinking, open mindedness, dependability, organization and a willingness to grow. Students engage with classmates in formal and informal settings and are challenged to think outside the box with fun exercises ranging from group storytelling to TED Talk-style presentations.

“The course is experiential and participatory in nature. The majority of what we do is based on human interaction and communication,” says instructor Michele Apríña Leavy. “Many of these students do not have theater or acting classes in their home universities. This course offers a practical opportunity to learn communication skills that apply in the real world as they navigate a global community and encounter people with different cultural mores and work environments.” Leavy adds, “One of the biggest gifts I hope the students take away from this class is a strong sense of achievement, self-confidence, self-acceptance and a greater ease and facility with the English language.”

From Our Students

“I’ve learned about many different cultures and languages and experienced new things that I can’t experience in Korea. It broadened my perspective. I think this is one of the best aspects of studying abroad, and one that will stay with me forever.”

Songhee Kim, Study Abroad Foundation

“Last year changed my life. I was a little bit anxious about living in Davis, however, many of my friends and the Global Study Program staff made my life splendid!”

Sho Katayama, Chuo University

“I was intrigued by the prospect of participating in a course that deviates from conventional classroom teaching and decided to give Presentation, Communication and Collaboration Skills a try! The course pushed me to find courage, but the instructor taught me how to be courageous.”
